"The Power of Community-Based Philanthropy: Inspiring Lessons from a National Leader"

What is philanthropy and why should you care?

Engage with a lifelong expert who founded, led, and championed community-based philanthropy at the state, federal, and even international levels and how it can impact you as an individual and enhance your community!

You will be inspired and informed by this conversation with Rob Collier:

- Learn how policies encourage tax-advantageous giving (are you taking full advantage?) and how government shapes the charitable sector
- Understand how engaging in philanthropy can pass on family values and create a lasting legacy
- Believe in a bright future because of the proven potential of youth to positively impact society

Robert S. Collier

Retired President of the Council of Michigan Foundations, Rob Collier has a 45-year history in the charitable nonprofit sector, including roles at the C.S. Mott Foundation, the Gannett Foundation, Rotary Charities of Traverse City and founding the Grand Traverse Regional Community Foundation.

From helping families to assisting companies with their strategic community giving to working with communities statewide, Rob has facilitated proactive public/partnerships with both state and federal governments and impacted tax policy to encourage charitable giving.
